

KATE WERBLE GALLERY

83 VANDAM STREET NEW YORK, NY 10013

OBSERVER CULTURE

10 Things To Do in New York's Art World Before November 15

Ryan Steadman • 11/12/15

November 12, 2015

Christopher Chiappa's Fried Egg Painting #60. (Photo: Courtesy of Sculpture Center)

Opening: Christopher Chiappa LIVESTRONG at Kate Werble Gallery

Now this is going to be “eggcellent.” Christopher Chiappa has “cracked” it wide open with his third solo show titled LIVESTRONG. Here we’ll see a new series of 7,000 handmade fried egg sculptures that will completely take the gallery over (easy). The hyper-realistic sculptures, constructed through a carefully calibrated process of casting, pouring, sanding and painting plaster, are sure to “scramble” your mind as you try to process how someone would make such a thing. Clearly, Mr. Chiappa has “poached” some thoughts from Abstract Eggspressionism, but as the eggs begin to overwhelm you, you may start wondering which came first? The artist or the egg.

Kate Werble Gallery, 83 Vandam Street, New York, 6:00 – 8:00 p.m.