Weekend Edition: 10 Things to Do in New York's Art World Before September 13

Ryan Steadman

September 10, 2015

FRIDAY SEPTEMBER 11

Opening: Laurel Sparks, "Rubedo" at Kate Werble Gallery

Bard grad Laurel Sparks brings her archaic tablet-cum-teenage bedroom abstractions to this gallery known for ushering new talent into our visual sphere. Ms. Sparks proves that abstraction is far from over; it just needs the right touch. She attacks the canvas by deconstructing (and reconstructing) photographic imagery, slowly building uncanny paintings that are both bright and surly, gridded and organic, introverted and raucous. I don't know you at all, but I'm pretty much completely sure you'll enjoy them.

Kate Werble Gallery, 83 Vandam St, Opening from September 11, 6 – 8 p.m., open through October 24
